

“Boys in the Boat” - Scenes in Seattle

Many guests visiting Seattle these days have read the recent best-selling book The Boys in the Boat: Nine Americans and their Epic Quest for Gold at the 1936 Berlin Olympics by Daniel James Brown. This fascinating non-fiction book is about the University of Washington crew team that overcame great odds to get to Germany and win the 1936 Olympic gold medal.

Spend an afternoon exploring north Seattle and see some highlights from the book. Drive by historic Roosevelt High School, where team member Joe Rantz graduated, walk the nearby, beautiful University of Washington (UW) campus, see the original winning shell built by George Pocock, rent a boat at the UW Waterfront Activities center during the nicer weather months, and make a stop at a local favorite, Agua Verde, for lunch or cocktails and maybe a kayak rental.

University of Washington, www.washington.edu

UW is also known as U-Dub to the locals. This university enrolls 45,000 students, and the main entrance is located at 17th Ave. NE and NE 45th Street. Its western border is Lake Washington and the southern border is the Montlake Cut, which is the body of water connecting Lake Washington and Lake Union, and where the UW crew team used to row.

This building was originally a seaplane hangar built by the Navy in WWI and became the Canoe House which was where the original 1936 crew team practiced. It is now open to the public during the nicer months of the year and is used as a canoe and rental facility. The Waterfront Activities Center is located directly behind Husky Stadium on Union Bay and the Montlake Cut.

Conibear Shellhouse, <http://www.huskycrew.com/shellhouse.htm>

The Conibear Shellhouse is located just north of Husky Stadium on Lake Washington and houses the current UW rowing program. Some of the artifacts from the book displayed there include the original winning Husky Clipper in the Windermere Cup Dining Hall, Joe Rantz' and Don Hume's letterman sweaters in the Windermere Cup Dining Hall, Joe Rantz' Olympic jersey in the trophy case, and Don Hume's oar in the Captains Room. Much of this information is from http://www.gohuskies.com/ViewArticle.dbml?DB\_OEM\_ID=30200&ATCLID=209853072

Roosevelt High School, <http://roosevelths.seattleschools.org/>

Joe Rantz attended nearby Roosevelt High School and competed on the gymnastics team, where he was discovered by the UW Rowing Coach. Roosevelt is one of the older and more famous high schools in the city and was built in 1922, located at 1410 NE 66th St. in Seattle.

Agua Verde Café and Paddle Club, <http://aguaverde.com/>

This Mexican restaurant is not part of the book, but the food is creative and good and it is in a great waterfront location on the Montlake Cut adjacent to the UW Campus. Before or after your meal, you can even rent a kayak or paddleboard on site and take it out on the water.
